

A Jewish Woman's Prayer Book

An evening in honor of
Dr. Aliza Lavie's book

Tuesday | 5.1 | 8 PM

In this unique prayer book, the first of its kind, Dr. Aliza Lavie presents women's prayers from various periods in history and communities around the Jewish world. It includes prayers written by and for women, prayers intended for experiences and events specific to women, and more. The book, which was recently translated into English, has elicited widespread interest among American Jews and many other groups. In this evening in honor of the English translation of the book, we will discuss the special significance of women's prayer, the return to ancient texts, and the cultural impact of the book in Israel and around the world.

With: Prof. Avigdor Shinan, moderator: introductory lecture—"The Prayers of Sarah in Ancient Jewish Literature"

Dr. Aliza Lavie, Bar-Ilan University, author of "Tefilat Nashim" (A Jewish woman's prayer book) and "Ha-Tarmil ha-Yehudi" (The Jewish backpack).

Kaeren Fish, translator of the book

Singer and cantor Hagit Kfir, with demonstrations of unique prayers

The event will be held in English.
